

What are employers looking for?

Employers want to meet students who demonstrate the potential to learn and grow within their organisation. They look for students with well-developed skills that they have gained through a range of experiences, including part-time and casual work, volunteering, internships, study abroad, student club involvement, etc.

Many employers consider students from any discipline. In other words, there may be opportunities for you with employers that you might not initially think of.

So, do your research on the employers participating and consider the transferability of your skills and experience.

Questions?

Contact your University's Career Service if you have any questions about the event

ANU Careers – Careers@anu.edu.au

UC Careers – Careers@canberra.edu.au

ACU Career Service – Rebecca.Sweett@acu.edu.au